

Food Culture

Cheung Hing Tea House (If literally translated: Cheung Hing Coffee Room)

For many years, the tea house has been a place for locals to hang out at for conversation or simply for a refreshing drink. An interesting fact about Hong Kong tea houses is that the owners of the store always works there, usually having the store owner's wife as the cashier. This particular tea house has been serving the locals of Happy Valley and many celebrities for over 53 years.

The tea house serves many different foods and drinks, but the most commonly ordered would be the coffee mixed with tea, cold milk tea, and the hot lemon tea. These drinks, especially the coffee mixed with tea, are drinks that Hong Kong people especially like, and have been drinking for many years. Most drinks have a choice of hot or cold, and cold drinks usually only costs around a dollar or two more. If what you want is an experience in Hong Kong food culture, then this is a must-go destination for you!

From left to right: 熱鴛鴦Coffee mixed with tea (hot), 凍奶茶Milk tea (cold), 熱檸茶Lemon tea (hot)

Neighborhood

The tea house is located on King Kwong St in Happy Valley. Upon arriving at the tram station, the Happy Valley Racecourse is located on one side of Wong Nai Chung Rd, and the other side will be Sing Woo Rd. King Kwong St is the second street on the right hand side of Sing Woo Rd when arriving from the tram station.

Transportation

Type of transport	Destination	Price
Tram	"Happy Valley"	$2

The tram is the cheapest way of getting into Happy Valley, with the price of $2 for adults (11+) and %1 for anyone below the age of 11. However, other transport such as the taxi can get into Happy Valley as well. On Saturdays, there may be horse races in the Happy Valley Racecourse, and so traffic may become quite congested (for cars).

Food Culture

A Traveler's Code of Ethics:

Choose to be surprised, not disappointed, when places and people do not match your expectations. You're a traveler, not a person who wants a home away from home, right?

Charles 11GY
Chinese International School